

STUDENT AFFAIRS

Dr. Katie L. Treadwell researches and writes extensively about the aftermath of university crises and the subsequent experiences of campus first responders. Katie primarily researches the personal experiences of higher education administrators who encounter high-profile campus disasters. Her research portfolio includes in-depth investigations of intentional violence, terrorism, natural disasters, and accidents that forever change a campus community.

Katie's work appears in the Chronicle of Higher Education, Encyclopedia of Strategic Leadership and Management, Journal of Student Affairs Research and Practice, About Campus, and other higher education publications. She frequently consults with campus leaders through NASPA: Student Affairs Administrators in Higher Education, ACPA: College Student Educators International, American Education Research Association, and numerous colleges and universities.

Dr. Treadwell has twenty years of experience in higher education administration, including roles in student engagement, crisis response, residential life, student conduct, and mental health outreach. She currently serves as Assistant Vice Provost for Student Affairs at the University of Kansas, where she leads student engagement and student affairs emergency response initiatives.
