

Fred Lehman, DVM, MABM, DACT, PMP is the Sr. Assoc. Director, New Business Development & Licensing for Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health. Dr. Lehman received his DVM from Oklahoma State University and subsequently established a mixed animal practice in Perryton, TX. He became a Diplomat in the American College of Theriogenologists (animal reproduction) and received a Master of Agri-Business Management degree as elements of a clinical residency at Mississippi State University. His association with the field of animal reproduction has been highlighted by serving as president of the Society for Theriogenology as well as the founding Treasurer of the Therio Foundation. In addition to veterinary practice, Dr. Lehman has served on faculty at MSU and has held varied positions in the animal health industry. In each of Lehman's diverse roles, he has focused on merging the science and business of veterinary medicine with a goal of introducing new products, services, and management practices. His objective has been to improve the delivery of medical care to patients and ensure better economic outcomes for animal health related businesses.